SUBJECT : Service Bulletins Affecting FOG Equipment

TO : All Suppliers

During the course of equipping FOG units with the various equipments, modifications and/or changes to the equipments to improve performance and/or reliability have in the past been necessary. It is anticipated that future modifications and changes of this nature will occur. In order to maintain continuity within the program, it is essential that definite procedures be established relative to modifying and changing equipment.

STATINTL

Mr. [REDACTED] LAC, is responsible for the publication of a Pilot's Handbook and an Erection & Maintenance Manual. These documents describe and discuss the operation and maintenance of the aircraft and its equipments. In order for these documents to remain current and reflect the proper procedures, it is mandatory that each equipment contractor issuing a change bulletin relative to his equipment, that affects aircraft integrity, the other equipments or their operation, coordinate such change bulletin with LAC in order that the Pilot's and E&M Manuals can be appropriately amended. In some instances, additional bulletins would be generated by LAC to complete the change.

The above procedures, through somewhat restrictive, are essential to the intergration of the FOG program and will assure a more successful operation under the procedures utilized by the Air Force.

Sincerely,

Dan
